

Solcara LegalIN (Legal Information Network) is designed specifically for in-house legal and Legal Library/Information Services teams. It delivers a single, intuitive and flexible search interface across all essential online legal information services. It puts you in control by ensuring that all legal research is quick, consistent, comprehensive, repeatable and sharable.

Legal librarians, researchers, in-house lawyers and information services teams are under increasing pressure to do more with less; more comprehensive and better quality research using fewer internal resources, smaller budgets and tighter than ever deadlines. The explosion in the number of information systems and services required to conduct legal research has meant that high value and high cost online resources are often under-utilised or overlooked completely. The result is that research takes longer, is not comprehensive, users get frustrated and the risks for the organisation are increased.

Solcara LegalIN is a hosted solution with easy access provided through a standard web browser interface. The technology supports integration with all primary sources of legal information in the UK, Ireland and the Channel Islands and it puts you in control of what and how you search.

With Solcara LegalIN users can submit a single search and navigate a unified result set across all resources. Furthermore, Solcara LegalIN enables content from different resources to be linked, commented upon, saved and shared across the organisation. The creation of these dynamic, searchable and shareable collections across all of your online resources is unique, it saves time and improves the quality and timeliness of service enabling you to do more with less.

Solcara LegalIN utilises the Solcara SolSearch technology and this has been successfully deployed in more than twenty leading UK, Irish and Channel Island law firms.

Solcara LegalIN enables in-house lawyers, Library and Information Services teams to do more comprehensive research in less time and with fewer internal resources. It ensures that all research is efficient, comprehensive, consistent and that it can be retained for later recall whenever required.

Solcara LegalIN unifies access to all essential online legal information resources.

✓ Organise and link your essential online legal information services

A flexible interface that enables you link and search resources from different providers via a single intuitive user interface. For example you can search Case Law, Legislation, Journals, KnowHow and other materials from Lexis Library, Westlaw UK, Justis and other resources with a single query.

✓ Personalise and share information

Personalised bookmarking and tagging of search results support the creation of collections that link content across different information resources. The result is a series of personalised and dynamic knowledge bases that can be shared and searched throughout the organisation. Capturing the results of your research in this way saves time, ensures consistency and ultimately saves you money.

✓ Simple and advanced search interfaces

Users are increasing familiar with Google and other search tools and Solcara LegalIN is designed to be as easy to use as these but comprehensive in that it only targets and searches resources approved by you. Advanced search interfaces for different content types are also available.

✓ Search results are always up to date

Solcara legalIN connects directly to each service you subscribe to and use and searches these in real time. This guarantees that the results are always as up to date as the resources themselves.

✓ Extensive library of supported services

Solcara LegalIN connects to and researches primary resources for legal information available in the UK, Ireland and the Channel Islands. Further extensions are planned to incorporate resources from the USA and other jurisdictions.

✓ Comprehensive audit and usage reporting

Automatic recording of every search of every resource. Every result clicked is recorded and audit records link each access to the original search to support advanced usage reporting. Knowing what your users search for and where they go for information helps administrators review and improve the system on an ongoing basis.

✓ Hosted and in-house versions available

Solcara LegalIN is designed to be hosted and target online information resources. It can be deployed internally to further integrate additional internal information resources such as Document Management Systems, Practice management Systems, Intranets and Precedent libraries/databases.
