

Solcara LegalResearcher is designed specifically for in-house lawyers, Legal Library and Information Services teams. It delivers a single, intuitive and flexible search interface across your key internal and essential online information services. It puts you in control by ensuring that all legal research is quick, consistent, comprehensive, repeatable and sharable.

Legal librarians, researchers, in-house lawyers and Information Services teams are under pressure to do more with less; more comprehensive and better quality research with fewer resources, smaller budgets and tighter than ever deadlines. The explosion in the number of information systems and services required to conduct comprehensive research has meant that high value internal and online resources are often under used or overlooked when conducting legal research. The result is that research takes longer is inconsistent and risks are increased.

Solcara LegalResearcher is installed in-house to enable integrated searching across key internal and essential online information systems and services. The technology supports integration with all primary sources of legal information in the UK, Ireland and the Channel Islands and it puts you in control of what and how you search.

With Solcara LegalResearcher users can submit a single search and navigate a unified result set across all resources. Furthermore, Solcara LegalResearcher enables content from different resources to be linked, commented upon, saved and shared across the organisation. The creation of dynamic, searchable and shareable collections across all of your information resources is unique, it saves time and improves the quality and timeliness of service enabling you to do more with less.

Solcara LegalResearcher enables Library and Information Services teams to do more comprehensive research in less time and with fewer resources. It ensures consistency and can be fine tuned to the specific needs of different organisations and research teams.

Solcara LegalResearcher provides in-house lawyers, legal librarians and information services staff with a single point of access to all essential internal and online legal information resources.

✓ Organise and link your essential online legal information services

A flexible interface that enables you to link and search resources from different providers via a single intuitive user interface. For example you can search Case Law, Legislation, Journals, KnowHow and other materials from Lexis Library, Westlaw UK, Justis and other resources with a single query.

✓ Personalise and share information

Personalised bookmarking and tagging of search results support the creation of collections that link content across different information resources. The result is a series of personalised and dynamic knowledge bases that can be shared and searched throughout the organisation. Capturing the results of your research in this way saves time, ensures consistency and ultimately saves you money.

✓ Simple and advanced search interfaces

Solcara LegalResearcher is designed to be as easy to use as Google and other commonly used search tools, but at the same time it is comprehensive in that it only targets and searches resources approved by you. Advanced search interfaces for different content types such as Legislation, Case Law, Precedents etc are also available.

✓ Search results are always up to date

Solcara LegalResearcher connects directly to each service you subscribe to and use and searches these in real time. This guarantees that the results are always as up to date as the resources themselves.

✓ Extensive library of supported services

Solcara LegalResearcher connects to and researches primary resources for legal information available in the UK, Ireland and the Channel Islands. Further extensions are planned to incorporate resources from the USA and other jurisdictions.

✓ Comprehensive audit and usage reporting

Automatic recording of every search of every resource. Every result clicked is recorded and audit records link each access to the original search to support advanced usage reporting. Knowing what your users search for and where they go for information helps administrators review and improve the system on an ongoing basis.

✓ Hosted and in-house versions available

Solcara LegalResearcher is designed to be installed in-house and integrates key internal and essential online information systems and services. A hosted solution is also available, Solcara LegalIN, that focuses entirely on search across online information services.
